

From:	Houlton, Tyler (b)(6)
	(b)(6)
To:	"Hoffman, Jonathan (b)(6)
	(b)(6)
	"Wolf, Chad (b)(6)
	(b)(6)
Subject:	RE: POLITICO's Morning Shift: DACA stalled at SOTU — Q&A with Cissna on H-1B — Wolf lobbied for Indian outsourcing companies
Date:	2018/01/30 10:40:03
Priority:	Normal
Type:	Note

Yes. Original story had a TSA quote making this same point.

Mike England, a spokesman for the TSA, wrote in an email that Wolf had "neither requested nor received a waiver."

Tyler Q. Houlton

Press Secretary (Acting)

Department of Homeland Security

(b)(6)

From: Hoffman, Jonathan

Sent: Tuesday, January 30, 2018 10:39 AM

To: Wolf, Chad (b)(6) Houlton, Tyler (b)(6)

Subject: RE: POLITICO's Morning Shift: DACA stalled at SOTU — Q&A with Cissna on H-1B — Wolf lobbied for Indian outsourcing companies

Tyler can you call Ted and explain to him.

From: Wolf, Chad

Sent: Tuesday, January 30, 2018 10:23:41 AM

To: Houlton, Tyler; Hoffman, Jonathan

Subject: RE: POLITICO's Morning Shift: DACA stalled at SOTU — Q&A with Cissna on H-1B — Wolf lobbied for Indian outsourcing companies

(b)(5)

Chad F. Wolf
Chief of Staff
Department of Homeland Security

From: Houlton, Tyler

Sent: Tuesday, January 30, 2018 10:13 AM

To: Hoffman, Jonathan (b)(6) Wolf, Chad (b)(6)

Subject: FW: POLITICO's Morning Shift: DACA stalled at SOTU — Q&A with Cissna on H-1B — Wolf lobbied for Indian outsourcing companies

FYI

WOLF LOBBIED FOR INDIAN OUTSOURCING COMPANIES: Chad Wolf, who was appointed DHS chief of staff on Monday, lobbied in 2015 and 2016 on behalf of a trade association that represents Indian information technology and outsourcing companies, according to related lobbying disclosure forms. Wolf, who spent more than a decade at the lobbying firm Wexler Walker before joining the Trump administration last year, worked to advance immigration issues for the National Association of Software and Services Companies, known as NASSCOM, according to the documents. In one sample filing in late 2016, Wexler Walker earned $60,000 for the service, which targeted members of the Congress. A senior administration official said Wolf had lobbied on a "fee issue" but would not provide further details. The official also said Wolf has recused himself from related matters.

NASSCOM has fought for years against proposals that seek to penalize so-called "H-1B dependent" companies (for a large company, that means 15 percent or more of its full-time employees hold H-1B visas). Just last week, the trade association criticized provisions in a bill from Sens. Orrin Hatch (R-Utah) and Jeff Flake (R-Ariz.) that would place more scrutiny on companies with a high percentage of H-1B workers. Wolf has been acting chief of staff at DHS since August and held the chief of staff role at the Transportation Security Administration from March until June. POLITICO noted in June that Wolf was one of several longtime lobbyists who did not receive an ethics waiver when he entered the administration. Read the late 2016 lobbying disclosure form here.

Tyler Q. Houlton

Press Secretary (Acting)

Department of Homeland Security

(b)(6)

From: Morning Shift (b)(6)

Sent: Tuesday, January 30, 2018 10:03 AM

To: Houlton, Tyler (b)(6)

Subject: POLITICO's Morning Shift: DACA stalled at SOTU — Q&A with Cissna on H-1B — Wolf lobbied for Indian outsourcing companies

By Ted Hesson | 01/30/2018 10:00 AM EDT

With help from Ian Kullgren, Andrew Hanna, Theodoric Meyer and Marianne LeVine

DACA STALLED AT SOTU: President Donald Trump will deliver his first formal State of the Union address before a joint session of Congress at 9 p.m. tonight. He told reporters Monday that immigration would be a topic, along with taxes and trade. "For many, many years they've been talking immigration, they never got anything done," Trump said following a swearing-in ceremony for Health and Human Services Secretary Alex Azar. "We're going to get something done, we hope. It's going to be bipartisan because the Republicans really don't have the votes to get it done in any other way, so it has to be bipartisan. But hopefully the Democrats will join us, or enough of them will join us, so we can really do something great for DACA and for immigration generally."

Trump's push comes as lawmakers continue fractious immigration talks on Capitol Hill. Several top Republicans and Democrats met Monday afternoon with White House chief of staff John Kelly, legislative affairs director Marc Short, and Homeland Security Secretary Kirstjen Nielsen to discuss the administration's legislative framework. The White House plan, which includes a path to citizenship for nearly 2 million DREAMers, $25 billion for a border wall, limits on family-based immigration, and a termination of the diversity visa lottery, received a cold reception last week from many Democrats and some Republicans.

Senate Minority Whip Dick Durbin(D-Ill.) reiterated his opposition to the Trump plan as he entered the meeting, citing as "one of the most serious problems" the administration's drastic reduction in family-based immigration. "The strength of American families has been a pillar of our country for as long as I can remember," he said. "To literally divide families from their children is inconsistent with the values that I thought both parties embraced." (The proposal would allow citizens and permanent residents to sponsor spouses and minor children, but not parents, adult children, or other family members.)

Senate Majority Whip John Cornyn(R-Texas), also in attendance, said Democrats would need to embrace some aspects of the White House proposal. "I know the Democrats would just like to take the DACA piece and forget the rest, but we're not going to do that," he told reporters after the meeting. Nielsen, who attended the gathering with DHS legislative affairs director Ben Cassidy and other department officials, said the president's framework should guide discussions on Capitol Hill, but she wouldn't say where lawmakers had found agreement, if any. "I think president has made an offer, so we're starting from there," she said.

At least two dozen Dreamers will attend the State of Union, mostly as guests of Democrats, though Rep. Carlos Curbelo (R-Fla.) also invited a DREAMer. At the other pole of the immigration debate, the White House - which has repeatedly sought to link immigration and crime - will invite the mother of a teenager allegedly killed by four MS-13 gang members, the New York Times reports. Several Democrats, including Rep. Frederica Wilson (D-Fla.), won't attend the event, CNN's Sophie Tatum reports. "I cannot in good consciousness attend the #SOTU address after the president went so low in his remarks about Haiti & African nations," Wilson tweeted in mid-January. "It would be hypocrisy to go to an event at which he is honored."

Questions about the State of the Union? Read a guide from POLITICO's Ayanna Alexander and Elizabeth Castillo with everything you need to know here.

GOOD MORNING! It's Tuesday, Jan. 30, and this is Morning Shift, POLITICO's daily tipsheet on employment and immigration policy. Send tips, exclusives and suggestions to thesson@politico.com, ikullgren@politico.com, ahanna@politico.com and tnoah@politico.com. Follow us on Twitter at @tedhesson, @AndrewBHanna, @IanKullgren and @TimothyNoah1.

Q&A WITH CISSNA ON H-1B: U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services Director Francis Cissna called the replacement of native-born tech workers with H-1B guest workers "not acceptable" in a recent interview with POLITICO's Ted Hesson. "It shouldn't be the case that an American worker sitting in his job right now would be laid off and intentionally replaced by a foreign worker for whatever reason," Cissna said. The Trump administration plans significant changes to the H-1B program in the coming year to better protect U.S. workers. Pros can read about the changes and a Q&A with Cissna here.

WOLF LOBBIED FOR INDIAN OUTSOURCING COMPANIES: Chad Wolf, who was appointed DHS chief of staff on Monday, lobbied in 2015 and 2016 on behalf of a trade association that represents Indian information technology and outsourcing companies, according to related lobbying disclosure forms. Wolf, who spent more than a decade at the lobbying firm Wexler Walker before joining the Trump administration last year, worked to advance immigration issues for the National Association of Software and Services Companies, known as NASSCOM, according to the documents. In one sample filing in late 2016, Wexler Walker earned $60,000 for the service, which targeted members of the Congress. A senior administration official said Wolf had lobbied on a "fee issue" but would not provide further details. The official also said Wolf has recused himself from related matters.

NASSCOM has fought for years against proposals that seek to penalize so-called "H-1B dependent" companies (for a large company, that means 15 percent or more of its full-time employees hold H-1B visas). Just last week, the trade association criticized provisions in a bill from Sens. Orrin Hatch (R-Utah) and Jeff Flake (R-Ariz.) that would place more scrutiny on companies with a high percentage of H-1B workers. Wolf has been acting chief of staff at DHS since August and held the chief of staff role at the Transportation Security Administration from March until June. POLITICO noted in June that Wolf was one of several longtime lobbyists who did not receive an ethics waiver when he entered the administration. Read the late 2016 lobbying disclosure form here.

FARM INJURIES: Children in rural areas face a grave risk of getting injured because of dangers on the farm, raising difficult questions about when the government should intervene, Jack Healy writes for The New York Times. "At a time when industries and some rural residents have rallied behind the Trump administration's push to roll back an array of regulations, the debate over safety standards on family farms raises difficult questions about the line where personal responsibility should end and government oversight should begin."

"Questioning whether a child should be riding in a tractor or playing in the barn is no easy thing in rural communities," writes Healy. "Generations of farm children have woken before dawn to feed livestock and do chores that families call a sacrosanct part of life. It is a way of passing on lessons about hard work, responsibility and the pulse of the land that their children will someday take over. With prices plummeting for wheat, dairy and other products, smaller, struggling farms are also under intense financial pressure, and entire families are pitching in to survive." More here.

FARM HARASSMENT: Sexual harassment is an unseen but prevalent menace on American farms, especially for guest workers on H-2A visas, Ariel Ramchandani writes in the Atlantic. "In recent months, stories of sexual harassment and assault have been flowing on a daily basis from the entertainment, media, and tech industries. But low-wage workers, who are disproportionately women of color, are extremely susceptible to harassment in the workplace, and their stories receive far less attention. ... In a 2012 Human Rights Watch report, nearly all of the farmworkers interviewed said they had experienced sexual violence or harassment or knew someone who had. In 2010, a study found that of 150 Mexican women working in the Central Valley in California, 80 percent had experienced sexual harassment." More here.

NLRB NOMINEE RING REPORTS INCOME: "Morgan, Lewis & Bockius partner John Ring, the latest Trump pick for the National Labor Relations Board, on Friday reported $2.7 million in partner and bonus income and disclosed a host of big-name clients, including Google, Amazon.com and Marriott International, as his nomination advances to the U.S. Senate," Erin Mulvaney reports in the National Law Journal. More here.

NLRB GETS WORKPLACE RULE DO-OVER: "The D.C. Circuit on Monday remanded most of a restaurant chain's appeal of a National Labor Relations Board ruling that a slew of the chain's workplace rules violated federal labor law, granting the board's request to reconsider whether several of those rules are still illegal under a new standard the NLRB created last month," Vin Gurrieri reports in Law360. "A three-judge panel remanded a majority of the NLRB's findings from a multi-pronged 2016 ruling which, among other things, held that The Daily Grill proffered a series of workplace handbook rules that were too broad and could be interpreted by employees as discouraging them against engaging in union activity." More here.

#METOO TRICKY IN 2018: "As they prepare for the 2018 elections, both Democrats and Republicans are dealing with dissenting opinions in their ranks over their handling of candidates or officeholders facing sexual harassment allegations," POLITICO's Maggie Severns and Marianne LeVine report.

"While most Republican officeholders interviewed by POLITICO over the past two weeks expressed the view that voters, not lawmakers, should decide whether a lawmaker accused of sexual harassment loses his or her seat, the GOP lawmakers charged with increasing their party's majorities in Congress say they're ready to take action if credible allegations against a candidate surface in the future," the pair write. "Meanwhile, Democrats, who moved quickly to withdraw support for Sen. Al Franken, Rep. John Conyers and Kansas congressional candidate Andrea Ramsey based on allegations from many years earlier, are facing some complaints over what some perceive to be a rush to judgment." More here.

DEMS CALL FOR BETTER DATA: "Twenty-two Democratic senators sent a letter to the top federal labor officials on Monday demanding their department collect more and better data concerning sexual harassment in the United States workforce," Lam Thuy Vo reports in BuzzFeed. "The senators are requesting the Labor Department collect data on the 'prevalence and cost of sexual harassment,'" the outlet reports. "In particular, the senators want the department to do a study on the economic impact of sexual harassment on the labor force broadly and on workers themselves on a national level." More here.

CATO ON WHITE HOUSE PLAN: David Bier and Stuart Anderson of the libertarian Cato Institute write in a blog post that the Trump immigration plan "calls on Congress to enact draconian restrictions on legal immigrants. Members of Congress will have to flesh out the details, but in the most likely scenario, the new plan would cut the number of legal immigrants by up to 44 percent or half a million immigrants annually-the largest policy-driven legal immigration cut since the 1920s." Read the analysis here.

CHAMBER BACKS DACA, TPS PROTECTIONS: The U.S. Chamber of Commerce urged the federal government to safeguard immigrants in a post ahead of Trump's State of the Union address. "We're calling on Congress to quickly take action to protect the roughly 200,000 TPS beneficiaries, the over 30,000 spouses of high-skilled visa holders, and the some 690,000 Dreamers in our country," Executive Vice President Neil Bradley wrote Monday. The business group also said it hopes to see Trump "lay out a vision for more pro-growth policies" on infrastructure reform and trade modernization. More here.

COFFEE BREAK:

- "Harassment training for lawmakers: where's the line?" from the Wall Street Journal

- "Exclusive: ICE is about to start tracking license plates across the US," from the Verge

- "On her first anniversary, the SBA's Linda McMahon reflects on accomplishments, changes," from the Washington Post

- "Nearly 9,000 DACA teachers face an uncertain future," from NPR

- "Immigrants aren't 'pouring' across the border, as Trump says in pitching the wall," from the Dallas Morning News

THAT'S ALL FOR MORNING SHIFT.

To view online:

<https://www.politico.com/newsletters/morning-shift/2018/01/30/daca-stalled-at-sotu-086673>

To change your alert settings, please go to <https://secure.politico.com/settings>

This email was sent to (b)(6) by: POLITICO, LLC 1000 Wilson Blvd.
Arlington, VA, 22209, USA

Please click here and follow the steps to unsubscribe.

Sender:	Houlton, Tyler (b)(6) (b)(6)
Recipient:	"Hoffman, Jonathan (b)(6) (b)(6) "Wolf, Chad (b)(6) (b)(6)
Sent Date:	2018/01/30 10:40:02
Delivered Date:	2018/01/30 10:40:03

From:	(b)(6)
To:	"Wolf, Chad (b)(6) (b)(6)
Subject:	Re: New Spot
Date:	2017/06/28 06:49:14
Type:	Note

Congrats man! Awesome news. Miss you over at the firm. We will keep your seat warm if you ever want to return!

(b)(6)

Senior Vice President & Managing Director
Wexler | Walker

(b)(6)

> On Jun 28, 2017, at 6:47 AM, Wolf, Chad (b)(6) wrote:
>
> Changing roles over here. Moved up to DHS HQ as Deputy Chief of Staff. Start the new gig after the 4th - this is the new email.
>
> Still churning at TSA for now. We have some announcements today:).
>
> Pls pass along to the team. Missing the office ...
>

Sender:	(b)(6)
Recipient:	"Wolf, Chad (b)(6) (b)(6)
Sent Date:	2017/06/28 06:49:08
Delivered Date:	2017/06/28 06:49:14

From:	Houlton, Tyler (b)(6)
	(b)(6)
To:	"Hoffman, Jonathan (b)(6)
	(b)(6)
	"Wolf, Chad (b)(6)
	(b)(6)
Subject:	FW: POLITICO's Morning Shift: DACA stalled at SOTU — Q&A with Cissna on H-1B — Wolf lobbied for Indian outsourcing companies
Date:	2018/01/30 10:13:03
Priority:	Normal
Type:	Note

FYI

WOLF LOBBIED FOR INDIAN OUTSOURCING COMPANIES: Chad Wolf, who was appointed DHS chief of staff on Monday, lobbied in 2015 and 2016 on behalf of a trade association that represents Indian information technology and outsourcing companies, according to related lobbying disclosure forms. Wolf, who spent more than a decade at the lobbying firm Wexler Walker before joining the Trump administration last year, worked to advance immigration issues for the National Association of Software and Services Companies, known as NASSCOM, according to the documents. In one sample filing in late 2016, Wexler Walker earned $60,000 for the service, which targeted members of the Congress. A senior administration official said Wolf had lobbied on a "fee issue" but would not provide further details. The official also said Wolf has recused himself from related matters.

NASSCOM has fought for years against proposals that seek to penalize so-called "H-1B dependent" companies (for a large company, that means 15 percent or more of its full-time employees hold H-1B visas). Just last week, the trade association criticized provisions in a bill from Sens. Orrin Hatch (R-Utah) and Jeff Flake (R-Ariz.) that would place more scrutiny on companies with a high percentage of H-1B workers. Wolf has been acting chief of staff at DHS since August and held the chief of staff role at the Transportation Security Administration from March until June. POLITICO noted in June that Wolf was one of several longtime lobbyists who did not receive an ethics waiver when he entered the administration. Read the late 2016 lobbying disclosure form here.

Tyler Q. Houlton

Press Secretary (Acting)

Department of Homeland Security

(b)(6)

From: Morning Shift (b)(6)

Sent: Tuesday, January 30, 2018 10:03 AM

To: Houlton, Tyler (b)(6)

Subject: POLITICO's Morning Shift: DACA stalled at SOTU — Q&A with Cissna on H-1B — Wolf lobbied for Indian outsourcing companies

By Ted Hesson | 01/30/2018 10:00 AM EDT

With help from Ian Kullgren, Andrew Hanna, Theodoric Meyer and Marianne LeVine

DACA STALLED AT SOTU: President Donald Trump will deliver his first formal State of the Union address before a joint session of Congress at 9 p.m. tonight. He told reporters Monday that immigration would be a topic, along with taxes and trade. "For many, many years they've been talking immigration, they never got anything done," Trump said following a swearing-in ceremony for Health and Human Services Secretary Alex Azar. "We're going to get something done, we hope. It's going to be bipartisan because the Republicans really don't have the votes to get it done in any other way, so it has to be bipartisan. But hopefully the Democrats will join us, or enough of them will join us, so we can really do something great for DACA and for immigration generally."

Trump's push comes as lawmakers continue fractious immigration talks on Capitol Hill. Several top Republicans and Democrats met Monday afternoon with White House chief of staff John Kelly, legislative affairs director Marc Short, and Homeland Security Secretary Kirstjen Nielsen to discuss the administration's legislative framework. The White House plan, which includes a path to citizenship for nearly 2 million DREAMers, $25 billion for a border wall, limits on family-based immigration, and a termination of the diversity visa lottery, received a cold reception last week from many Democrats and some Republicans.

Senate Minority Whip Dick Durbin(D-Ill.) reiterated his opposition to the Trump plan as he entered the meeting, citing as "one of the most serious problems" the administration's drastic reduction in family-based immigration. "The strength of American families has been a pillar of our country for as long as I can remember," he said. "To literally divide families from their children is inconsistent with the values that I thought both parties embraced." (The proposal would allow citizens and permanent residents to sponsor spouses and minor children, but not parents, adult children, or other family members.)

Senate Majority Whip John Cornyn(R-Texas), also in attendance, said Democrats would need to embrace some aspects of the White House proposal. "I know the Democrats would just like to take the DACA piece and forget the rest, but we're not going to do that," he told reporters after the meeting. Nielsen, who attended the gathering with DHS legislative affairs director Ben Cassidy and other department officials, said the president's framework should guide discussions on Capitol Hill, but she wouldn't say where lawmakers had found agreement, if any. "I think president has made an offer, so we're starting from there," she said.

At least two dozen Dreamers will attend the State of Union, mostly as guests of Democrats, though Rep. Carlos Curbelo (R-Fla.) also invited a DREAMer. At the other pole of the immigration debate, the White House - which has repeatedly sought to link immigration and crime - will invite the mother of a teenager allegedly killed by four MS-13 gang members, the New York Times reports. Several Democrats, including Rep. Frederica Wilson (D-Fla.), won't attend the event, CNN's Sophie Tatum reports. "I cannot in good consciousness attend the #SOTU address after the president went so low in his remarks about Haiti & African nations," Wilson tweeted in mid-January. "It would be hypocrisy to go to an event at which he is honored."

Questions about the State of the Union? Read a guide from POLITICO's Ayanna Alexander and Elizabeth Castillo with everything you need to know here.

GOOD MORNING! It's Tuesday, Jan. 30, and this is Morning Shift, POLITICO's daily tipsheet on employment and immigration policy. Send tips, exclusives and suggestions to thesson@politico.com, ikullgren@politico.com, ahanna@politico.com and tnoah@politico.com. Follow us on Twitter at @tedhesson, @AndrewBHanna, @IanKullgren and @TimothyNoah1.

Q&A WITH CISSNA ON H-1B: U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services Director Francis Cissna called the replacement of native-born tech workers with H-1B guest workers "not acceptable" in a recent interview with POLITICO's Ted Hesson. "It shouldn't be the case that an American worker sitting in his job right now would be laid off and intentionally replaced by a foreign worker for whatever reason," Cissna said. The Trump administration plans significant changes to the H-1B program in the coming year to better protect U.S. workers. Pros can read about the changes and a Q&A with Cissna here.

WOLF LOBBIED FOR INDIAN OUTSOURCING COMPANIES: Chad Wolf, who was appointed DHS chief of staff on Monday, lobbied in 2015 and 2016 on behalf of a trade association that represents Indian information technology and outsourcing companies, according to related lobbying disclosure forms. Wolf, who spent more than a decade at the lobbying firm Wexler Walker before joining the Trump administration last year, worked to advance immigration issues for the National Association of Software and Services Companies, known as NASSCOM, according to the documents. In one sample filing in late 2016, Wexler Walker earned $60,000 for the service, which targeted members of the Congress. A senior administration official said Wolf had lobbied on a "fee issue" but would not provide further details. The official also said Wolf has recused himself from related matters.

NASSCOM has fought for years against proposals that seek to penalize so-called "H-1B dependent" companies (for a large company, that means 15 percent or more of its full-time employees hold H-1B visas). Just last week, the trade association criticized provisions in a bill from Sens. Orrin Hatch (R-Utah) and Jeff Flake (R-Ariz.) that would place more scrutiny on companies with a high percentage of H-1B workers. Wolf has been acting chief of staff at DHS since August and held the chief of staff role at the Transportation Security Administration from March until June. POLITICO noted in June that Wolf was one of several longtime lobbyists who did not receive an ethics waiver when he entered the administration. Read the late 2016 lobbying disclosure form here.

FARM INJURIES: Children in rural areas face a grave risk of getting injured because of dangers on the farm, raising difficult questions about when the government should intervene, Jack Healy writes for The New York Times. "At a time when industries and some rural residents have rallied behind the Trump administration's push to roll back an array of regulations, the debate over safety standards on family farms raises difficult questions about the line where personal responsibility should end and government oversight should begin."

"Questioning whether a child should be riding in a tractor or playing in the barn is no easy thing in rural communities," writes Healy. "Generations of farm children have woken before dawn to feed livestock and do chores that families call a sacrosanct part of life. It is a way of passing on lessons about hard work, responsibility and the pulse of the land that their children will someday take over. With prices plummeting for wheat, dairy and other products, smaller, struggling farms are also under intense financial pressure, and entire families are pitching in to survive." More here.

FARM HARASSMENT: Sexual harassment is an unseen but prevalent menace on American farms, especially for guest workers on H-2A visas, Ariel Ramchandani writes in the Atlantic. "In recent months, stories of sexual harassment and assault have been flowing on a daily basis from the entertainment, media, and tech industries. But low-wage workers, who are disproportionately women of color, are extremely susceptible to harassment in the workplace, and their stories receive far less attention. ... In a 2012 Human Rights Watch report, nearly all of the farmworkers interviewed said they had experienced sexual violence or harassment or knew someone who had. In 2010, a study found that of 150 Mexican women working in the Central Valley in California, 80 percent had experienced sexual harassment." More here.

NLRB NOMINEE RING REPORTS INCOME: "Morgan, Lewis & Bockius partner John Ring, the latest Trump pick for the National Labor Relations Board, on Friday reported $2.7 million in partner and bonus income and disclosed a host of big-name clients, including Google, Amazon.com and Marriott International, as his nomination advances to the U.S. Senate," Erin Mulvaney reports in the National Law Journal. More here.

NLRB GETS WORKPLACE RULE DO-OVER: "The D.C. Circuit on Monday remanded most of a restaurant chain's appeal of a National Labor Relations Board ruling that a slew of the chain's workplace rules violated federal labor law, granting the board's request to reconsider whether several of those rules are still illegal under a new standard the NLRB created last month," Vin Gurrieri reports in Law360. "A three-judge panel remanded a majority of the NLRB's findings from a multi-pronged 2016 ruling which, among other things, held that The Daily Grill proffered a series of workplace handbook rules that were too broad and could be interpreted by employees as discouraging them against engaging in union activity." More here.

#METOO TRICKY IN 2018: "As they prepare for the 2018 elections, both Democrats and Republicans are dealing with dissenting opinions in their ranks over their handling of candidates or officeholders facing sexual harassment allegations," POLITICO's Maggie Severns and Marianne LeVine report.

"While most Republican officeholders interviewed by POLITICO over the past two weeks expressed the view that voters, not lawmakers, should decide whether a lawmaker accused of sexual harassment loses his or her seat, the GOP lawmakers charged with increasing their party's majorities in Congress say they're ready to take action if credible allegations against a candidate surface in the future," the pair write. "Meanwhile, Democrats, who moved quickly to withdraw support for Sen. Al Franken, Rep. John Conyers and Kansas congressional candidate Andrea Ramsey based on allegations from many years earlier, are facing some complaints over what some perceive to be a rush to judgment." More here.

DEMS CALL FOR BETTER DATA: "Twenty-two Democratic senators sent a letter to the top federal labor officials on Monday demanding their department collect more and better data concerning sexual harassment in the United States workforce," Lam Thuy Vo reports in BuzzFeed. "The senators are requesting the Labor Department collect data on the 'prevalence and cost of sexual harassment,'" the outlet reports. "In particular, the senators want the department to do a study on the economic impact of sexual harassment on the labor force broadly and on workers themselves on a national level." More here.

CATO ON WHITE HOUSE PLAN: David Bier and Stuart Anderson of the libertarian Cato Institute write in a blog post that the Trump immigration plan "calls on Congress to enact draconian restrictions on legal immigrants. Members of Congress will have to flesh out the details, but in the most likely scenario, the new plan would cut the number of legal immigrants by up to 44 percent or half a million immigrants annually-the largest policy-driven legal immigration cut since the 1920s." Read the analysis here.

CHAMBER BACKS DACA, TPS PROTECTIONS: The U.S. Chamber of Commerce urged the federal government to safeguard immigrants in a post ahead of Trump's State of the Union address. "We're calling on Congress to quickly take action to protect the roughly 200,000 TPS beneficiaries, the over 30,000 spouses of high-skilled visa holders, and the some 690,000 Dreamers in our country," Executive Vice President Neil Bradley wrote Monday. The business group also said it hopes to see Trump "lay out a vision for more pro-growth policies" on infrastructure reform and trade modernization. More here.

COFFEE BREAK:

- "Harassment training for lawmakers: where's the line?" from the Wall Street Journal

- "Exclusive: ICE is about to start tracking license plates across the US," from the Verge

- "On her first anniversary, the SBA's Linda McMahon reflects on accomplishments, changes," from the Washington Post

- "Nearly 9,000 DACA teachers face an uncertain future," from NPR

- "Immigrants aren't 'pouring' across the border, as Trump says in pitching the wall," from the Dallas Morning News

THAT'S ALL FOR MORNING SHIFT.

To view online:

<https://www.politico.com/newsletters/morning-shift/2018/01/30/daca-stalled-at-sotu-086673>

To change your alert settings, please go to <https://secure.politico.com/settings>

This email was sent to (b)(6) by: POLITICO, LLC 1000 Wilson Blvd.
Arlington, VA, 22209, USA

Please click here and follow the steps to unsubscribe.

Sender:	Houlton, Tyler (b)(6) (b)(6)
Recipient:	"Hoffman, Jonathan (b)(6) (b)(6) "Wolf, Chad (b)(6) (b)(6)
Sent Date:	2018/01/30 10:13:02
Delivered Date:	2018/01/30 10:13:03

From:	Echeverria, Wendy	(b)(6)
To:	"Wolf, Chad	(b)(6)
Subject:	FW: Secretary of Homeland Security Kirstjen M. Nielsen on the Nomination of Chad Wolf
Date:	2019/02/15 11:46:45
Priority:	Normal
Type:	Note

Still “beefing up” that resume, I see. Congrats!

Wendy

Sent with BlackBerry Work

(www.blackberry.com)

From: Office of the Secretary (b)(6)

Date: Friday, Feb 15, 2019, 9:45 AM

Subject: Secretary of Homeland Security Kirstjen M. Nielsen on the Nomination of Chad Wolf

DHS Logo

February 15, 2019

Secretary of Homeland Security Kirstjen M. Nielsen on the Nomination of Chad Wolf

Today, President Trump nominated Chad F. Wolf to be the Under Secretary for Strategy, Policy, and Plans. I congratulate Chad on his nomination and am excited that he will continue to serve the Department in this critically important position and look forward to a swift confirmation process.

Chad has tirelessly and exceptionally served as the Department's Chief of Staff over the last year as an invaluable advisor and senior leader. Chad's leadership, expertise, and knowledge of the challenging issues confronting the Department make him an excellent nominee for Under Secretary. Prior to his appointment as the Chief of Staff, Chad served as both the Acting Chief of Staff and the Deputy Chief of Staff at the Department. In early 2017 he also served as the Chief of Staff at the Transportation Security Administration (TSA).

Before serving DHS in this administration, Chad was Vice President and Senior Director at Wexler | Walker, a bipartisan public policy consultancy. From 2002 to 2005, Chad helped stand up the TSA in the wake of the 9/11 attacks and served as Assistant Administrator of Transportation Security Policy. Early in his career, Chad worked in the U.S. Senate.

Chad has a bachelor's degree in history from Southern Methodist University, and a master certificate in government contract management from Villanova University.

Please join me in congratulating Chad on his nomination.

Sincerely,

Kirstjen M. Nielsen

Secretary of Homeland Security

With honor and integrity, we will safeguard the American people, our homeland, and our values.

Sender:	Echeverria, Wendy (b)(6)
Recipient:	"Wolf, Chad <(b)(6)> (b)(6)
Sent Date:	2019/02/15 11:46:36
Delivered Date:	2019/02/15 11:46:45

From:	(b)(6)
To:	"Wolf, Chad (b)(6) (b)(6)
Subject:	FW: Secretary of Homeland Security Kirstjen M. Nielsen on the Nomination of Chad Wolf
Date:	2019/02/20 13:50:00
Priority:	Normal
Type:	Note

Hi Chad,

Congratulations! What an honor. I hope the confirmation process is quick.

Hope you're doing well.

Respectfully,

(b)(6)

Attorney-Advisor, Legal Counsel Division
Office of the General Counsel
U.S. Department of Homeland Security

(b)(6)

~~ Warning  Attorney/Client Privilege  Attorney Work Product ***~~

~~This document contains confidential and/or sensitive attorney/client privileged information or attorney work product and is not for release, review, retransmission, dissemination or use by anyone other than the intended recipient. Please notify the sender if this message has been misdirected and immediately destroy all originals and copies. Any disclosure of this document must be approved by the Office of the General Counsel, U.S. Department of Homeland Security. This document is for INTERNAL GOVERNMENT USE ONLY. FOIA exempt under 5 U.S.C. § 552(b)(5).~~

From: Office of the Secretary (b)(6)
Sent: Friday, February 15, 2019 9:14 AM
Subject: Secretary of Homeland Security Kirstjen M. Nielsen on the Nomination of Chad Wolf

DHS Logo

February 15, 2019

Secretary of Homeland Security Kirstjen M. Nielsen on the Nomination of Chad Wolf

Today, President Trump nominated Chad F. Wolf to be the Under Secretary for Strategy, Policy, and Plans. I congratulate Chad on his nomination and am excited that he will continue to serve the Department in this critically important position and look forward to a swift confirmation process.

Chad has tirelessly and exceptionally served as the Department's Chief of Staff over the last year as an invaluable advisor and senior leader. Chad's leadership, expertise, and knowledge of the challenging issues confronting the Department make him an excellent nominee for Under Secretary. Prior to his appointment as the Chief of Staff, Chad served as both the Acting Chief of Staff and the Deputy Chief of Staff at the Department. In early 2017 he also served as the Chief of Staff at the Transportation Security Administration (TSA).

Before serving DHS in this administration, Chad was Vice President and Senior Director at Wexler | Walker, a bipartisan public policy consultancy. From 2002 to 2005, Chad helped stand up the TSA in the wake of the 9/11 attacks and served as Assistant Administrator of Transportation Security Policy. Early in his career, Chad worked in the U.S. Senate.

Chad has a bachelor's degree in history from Southern Methodist University, and a master certificate in government contract management from Villanova University.

Please join me in congratulating Chad on his nomination.

Sincerely,

Kirstjen M. Nielsen
Secretary of Homeland Security

With honor and integrity, we will safeguard the American people, our homeland, and our values.

Sender:	(b)(6)
Recipient:	"Wolf, Chad	(b)(6)
		(b)(6)
Sent Date:	2019/02/20 13:49:58
Delivered Date:	2019/02/20 13:50:00		