Attached is a draft letter (word document) that the SA would like to sign and send to the SEC DEF tomorrow. Request that you have your team put it in SA format and tweak as required for his style.

The SA would also like to meet with the A/SD in person tomorrow at 0900 (with the CSA). He told me it was re-scheduled as a phone call. I will engage but would like you to engage as well.

BG LaNeve,

Please add as required.

Thanks

The Pentagon, Washington, D.C.

Mr. Secretary,

Sir, reference our conversation yesterday. Last night I received formal requests for DCNG support from Mayor Muriel Bowser, and Dr. Christopher Rodriguez, Director, District of Columbia Homeland Security and Emergency Management Agency on behalf of the District of Columbia Metropolitan Police Department and District of Columbia Fire and Emergency Service.

Mr. Secretary, today additional mission analysis was conducted based on the formal requests and B5
B5 Sir, the formal request letters, mission analysis and my letter were sent to Ms. B6 Office of General Counsel this afternoon who confirmed she has them for action.

Finally Sir, U.S. Secret Service senior leaders will meet on Monday and let us know then if they will request our support for 5 and 6 January.

Mr. Secretary, I am standing by to answer any questions you may have between now and Monday. Happy New Year Sir.

Most respectfully,

MG Walker

Gentlemen,

Had a good call and AAR discussion with the PAO team. [B5] [B5] I recommended that they send the press release out to the Soldiers on mission so that they know what their left and right limits are should media come up and ask for interviews – due to the quick nature of this mission the team wasn't able to produce media cards for Soldiers to have in their pockets. We've also shared our PAG with the PAO team.

We are assisting the team with appropriate handling of a few threatening social media posts/direct messages and will share the CID-produced digital persona privacy guidebook. I recommended they have commanders distribute this to their Soldiers/Airmen and have a discussion on how people can protect their digital identity.

Capt. [B6] has reached out to the reporter to have him correct the incorrect statement about the 200 QRF personnel number in the story.

13. DC National Guard will be unarmed for Electoral College protests after George Floyd failures

Washington Examiner Online, Jan. 5 (1504) | Abraham Mahshie

In the face of severe criticism for its response to the George Floyd protests in June, the District of Columbia National Guard will be unarmed in the nation's capital to support local law enforcement during protests surrounding Congress's counting of electoral votes that is set for Wednesday.

"We saw numerous challenges, but we continue to support our fellow citizens and visitors to the district," spokesman Senior Master Sgt. Craig Clapper told the Washington Examiner on Tuesday. The Guard will be activated through Thursday.

Clapper said Mayor Muriel Bowser insisted that the 340 local Guard members who will help local law enforcement with traffic, crowd, and access control be unarmed.

Only Quick Response Force members, if specifically requested, would carry a baton and shield for personal protection.

"We've explicitly been told there is no weaponry of any kind for this mission," Clapper said. "If anything came to that, yes, they would have to facilitate transportation back to the armory."

Of the 340 activated Guard members, 115 would be on the street with traffic and crowd control at any one time, Clapper said. That leaves more than 200 that could potentially respond in a QRF capacity.

The District of Columbia National Guard was criticized this summer after it was called to assist law enforcement with clearing Lafayette Square of protesters near the White House prior to a curfew on June 1 so that President Trump could walk through the park for a photo opportunity.

Two National Guard helicopters flew low over protesters in an effort to disperse them, causing an incident that is still under Army investigation. The incident has been turned over to the Pentagon's inspector general, but the findings have not been made public.

The Guard also wore inadequate identification and borrowed gear with the city's police markings, all issues Clapper said have been resolved ahead of the current mission.

'Not a civil disturbance mission'

Should civil disturbance occur surrounding the electoral ballot count, authorities in the city would have to request authorization from Army Secretary Ryan McCarthy for a change in the National Guard mission. -

33-

"This is not a civil disturbance mission for us," Clapper said, drawing a distinction between the Guard response in June that encamped the entire 2,600-member force and summoned out-of-state Guard units, who remained nearby on the ready.

Following the June incident, then-Defense Secretary Mark Esper told the House Armed Services Committee that the 1,700 active-duty military members on standby in Virginia were not used and that 5,000 Guard members on duty did not engage protesters.

This activation may be different, with district businesses already boarding up and calling on employees to work remotely in what may be a final salvo for election protesters.

In October, McCarthy defended the use of the Guard during violent protests in which some Guard members were injured.

"The protests became very violent," McCarthy told Pentagon journalists at the time. "It was necessary to bring in the support to help local law enforcement and federal law enforcement officials due to the tremendous damage [and] police officers and Guardsmen being injured."

National Guard Association spokesman John Goheen sees few parallels between the June events and the current activation. He pointed out that previous protesters were locals, while tens of thousands of expected protesters this week are expected to be out-of-town Trump supporters who are angry at the election results.

"There certainly is some anger," he said. "Anger on the streets is not a good thing."

He added: "What you can't allow is for those expressions of anger to turn violent, either to people or property. So those are your similarities, but you are talking about different groups here."

Both officials assessed that the Metropolitan Police of the District of Columbia's intelligence was guiding decision-making at this early stage, monitoring social media chatter and messaging.

Proud Boys leader Enrique Tarrio was arrested on Monday after he entered the district in connection with setting fire to a Black Lives Matter banner taken from a historic black church. He was also charged with two felony counts of possessing high-capacity magazines found when he was taken into custody.

Still, Clapper said, Washington's Guard members, who are among the most diverse units in the country with an estimated 50% minorities, will not wear helmets or security vests.

"They literally have a vest, and it's like a vest that somebody at Walmart would wear," Clapper said. "Fingers crossed that nothing goes too crazy."

MORNING NEWS OF NOTE

As of 0430 Hours, January 6

Tweets of Note

The U.S. Mission to NATO tweeted: “Through @NATO’s @ResoluteSupport Mission in #Afghanistan, Allies & partners continue to train, advise and assist Afghan Security Forces as they fight against terrorism & work to bring peace and prosperity to their country.” On Russia, Sen. Mark Warner (D-VA) said: “We need to make clear to Russia that any misuse of compromised networks to produce destructive or harmful effects is unacceptable and will prompt an appropriately strong response.” And the Chairman of the High Council for National Reconciliation Abdullah Abdullah wrote: “As always had a constructive meeting with HE Zalmay Khalilzad @US4AfghanPeace. We discussed the latest developments in peace process, welcomed the beginning of the 2nd round of talks, stressed on making the most of the time for peace, called for ceasefire & reduction of violence.”

TOP NEWS

1. New Arctic strategy calls for more Navy activity in the region as competition from Russia, China increases
Stars and Stripes Online, Jan. 5 (2003) | Caitlin M. Kenney
The U.S. Navy released its strategy Tuesday on how the service plans to become more active in the Arctic as the region opens up to more economic and military competition from Russia and China. “In the face of increasing aggressive activity in the high north from both Russia, which is an Arctic nation, and China, which claims to be a near Arctic nation, we in the United States must maintain a favorable balance of power in this region for ourselves and for our allies,” Navy Secretary Kenneth Braithwaite told reporters ahead of the document’s release.
2. Russia’s Neighbors Rebuild Defenses
Wall Street Journal, Jan. 6 (2000), Pg. A1 | Michael M. Phillips and James Marson
With Russia’s foreign policy growing more assertive over the past decade under President Vladimir Putin, the Swedes are bulking up defenses on Gotland. Its army expects that in the opening moments of a Russian invasion, airborne soldiers from the 76th Guards, based across the Baltic Sea, would likely parachute onto Gotland. Both sides know that whoever controls the island controls naval traffic through the southern Baltic.
3. Troubled Afghan-Taliban peace talks resume amid violence, accusations
Washington Post, Jan. 6 (2015), Pg. A15 | Pamela Constable
Afghan delegates flew to Qatar on Tuesday to reopen peace talks with Taliban leaders amid a rash of mutual recriminations, mixed signals from U.S. officials and a continued spate of assassinations targeting prominent civilians.

4. STRATCOM: U.S. Needs ‘Broader-Based Strategic Review’ To Assess Threats
U.S. Naval Institute News, Jan. 5 (2015) | Mallory Shelbourne
The United States should conduct a new broad strategic review to evaluate global threats and determine its strategy, the head of U.S. Strategic Command said Tuesday.
5. Hospital Ship USNS Mercy Tied Up in Maintenance, Can’t Deploy for COVID Relief
U.S. Naval Institute News, Jan. 5 (2020) | Megan Eckstein
Despite worsening COVID-19 infection rates on the West Coast and discussion among local leaders in California about the state requesting a Navy hospital ship to ease the strain on area hospitals, the Navy’s West Coast hospital ship is in maintenance and unavailable for tasking for the next couple months.

6. Gulf States Pledge to Ease Yearslong Qatar Blockade
New York Times, Jan. 6 (2020), Pg. A10 | Vivian Yee and Megan Specia

At a regional summit meeting in Al Ula, Saudi Arabia, on Tuesday, representatives of Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates, Bahrain and Egypt signed an agreement to restore full diplomatic relations with Qatar, a major step toward ending the rift.

7. U.S. Air Force deploys airmen, drones to base in Romania

Associated Press, Jan. 5 (1338) | Not Attributed

The U.S. Air Force has deployed about 90 airmen and an unspecified number of drone aircraft to a base in central Romania, boosting its military presence in the region where there are allied concerns that Russia is trying to display its military strength.

REFORM

8. Head of U.S. Strategic Command blasts GBSD critics: 'Minuteman 3 cannot be life-extended'

SpaceNews Online, Jan. 5 (1820) | Sandra Erwin

The commander of U.S. Strategic Command Adm. Charles Richard said the Pentagon has to procure a new intercontinental ballistic missile and updating Cold War-era missiles is not an acceptable option.

9. Stratcom Revitalizing Nuclear Command, Control Systems

National Defense Magazine Online, Jan. 5 (2020) | Yasmin Tadjdeh

U.S. Strategic Command — which is charge of the nation's nuclear forces — is working to bolster its aging nuclear command, control and communications, or NC3, systems, the commander of the organization said Jan. 5.

10. Moderna Raises Its Production Estimate

Wall Street Journal, Jan. 6 (0200), Pg. A3 | Jonathan D. Rockoff

Moderna Inc. said it would be able to make at least 600 million doses of its Covid-19 vaccine this year, 100 million more than it had been projecting.

11. SECNAV 'not sure' when Nimitz strike group will come home

Navy Times Online, Jan. 5 (2030) | Geoff Ziezulewicz

In the midst of a tumultuous week for the sailors of the aircraft carrier Nimitz and its strike group, the Navy's top civilian leader said Tuesday that he doesn't know when those sailors will get back from an extended deployment that's about to enter its eighth month. During a call with reporters Tuesday, Navy Secretary Kenneth Braithwaite said he did not know when the Nimitz sailors will be coming home. Which other carrier could even relieve Nimitz in the near term remains unclear.

EXECUTIVE/LEGISLATIVE

12. White House Task Force: Give Extra Vaccine Away to Anyone Who Wants It

TheDailyBeast.com, Jan. 5 (2320) | Erin Banco

Senior officials working with the White House coronavirus task force and Operation Warp Speed are pushing for states to begin handing out some of their excess COVID-19 vaccine doses to whoever wants it, according to four individuals familiar with the matter.

13. DC National Guard will be unarmed for Electoral College protests after George Floyd failures

Washington Examiner Online, Jan. 5 (1504) | Abraham Mahshie

In the face of severe criticism for its response to the George Floyd protests in June, the District of Columbia National Guard will be unarmed in the nation's capital to support local law enforcement during protests surrounding Congress's counting of electoral votes that is set for Wednesday.

14. Trump's final efforts to overturn election create discomfort for the military

Washington Post, Jan. 6 (0115), Pg. A8 | Paul Sonne, Missy Ryan and Ellen Nakashima

Pentagon leaders are bracing for any renewed presidential attempts to employ the military for political ends, as President Trump takes increasingly aggressive steps to overturn his electoral defeat, and unarmed National Guardsmen prepare for pro-Trump protests in Washington on the day Congress is set to certify the election results.

GREAT POWER COMPETITION

15. Top admiral: SolarWinds computer hack didn't harm U.S.-based nukes

Washington Times Online, Jan. 5 (1831) | Mike Glenn

America's nuclear arsenal wasn't compromised by a recent cyber attack that targeted thousands of sensitive computer networks used by government agencies and private companies, the Navy admiral in charge of the U.S. Strategic Command said.

16. China tightens censorship rules despite pandemic backlash

Washington Examiner Online, Jan. 5 (1443) | Joel Gehrke

Chinese Communist officials have tightened the speech restrictions that govern party members, a repudiation of internal calls for more freedom of speech.

17. Japan moving on pledge to strengthen Senkaku defense in face of China claims

Stars and Stripes Online, Jan. 5 (2123) | Matthew M. Burke and Aya Ichihashi

Japan's Cabinet pledged recently to add new ships and aircraft to the nation's coast guard this year in response to an increasing Chinese naval presence in the East China Sea.

18. China says it will respond to planned Taiwan, U.S. defense talks

Reuters, Jan. 6 (0359) | Not Attributed

China said on Wednesday it would make a "necessary response" to a planned military dialogue between the United States and Chinese-claimed Taiwan, saying it firmly opposed the event.

19. NYSE China Shift Sparks Backlash

Wall Street Journal, Jan. 6 (0200), Pg. A1 | Alexander Osipovich

The New York Stock Exchange is in the hot seat after a baffling flip-flop in which it first said it would delist three Chinese companies to comply with an executive order from President Trump, only to reverse itself four days later.

SECURITY ENVIRONMENT

20. As US hits daily Covid-19 death toll record, states call in National Guard and train volunteers to help boost pace of vaccinations

CNN.com, Jan. 6 (0217) | Christina Maxouris

The US reported its highest daily Covid-19 death count ever Tuesday -- a grim milestone that comes as state leaders work urgently to combat a slow pace of vaccinations. As numbers climb, governors are now taking new measures to get the distributed vaccines into arms faster: including mobilizing National Guard members and training more volunteers to administer vaccines.

21. Iran: Seizure of South Korean tanker is not hostage-taking

Washington Post, Jan. 6 (0115), Pg. A14 | Simon Denyer, Min Joo and Kim Erin Cunningham

Iran denied on Tuesday it had taken a South Korean tanker hostage after the ship was seized by armed guards in Persian Gulf waters, even as it complained that Seoul had frozen $7 billion of its assets.

22. Iran tests drones in military exercise

Reuters, Jan. 5 (0957) | Not Attributed

Iran launched exercises featuring a wide array of domestically produced drones on Tuesday, Iranian media reported, days after the anniversary of the U.S. killing of a top Iranian general by a drone strike in Iraq.

23. Venezuela Installs Rubber-Stamp Congress

Venezuela's regime installed a rubber-stamp congress Tuesday, challenging an opposition legislature run by lawmaker Juan Guaido that says it remains the nation's sole democratic institution.

NOTABLE COMMENTARY

24. Preparing for the next cyberattack

Washington Post, Jan. 6 (0115), Pg. A22 | Editorial

The Solarwinds hack, it seems, was worse than initially feared - and initial fears were already alarming enough. The manner in which the U.S. government left itself vulnerable to the attack demands a reckoning that runs the policy gamut. But the best place to start may be the least flashy: security of the software supply chain.

25. Planning for Trump's tense final days

Washington Post, Jan. 6 (0115), Pg. A23 | David Ignatius

As President Trump's supporters gather in Washington for what could be several days of violent protests, senior government officials appear confident that the chaotic situation can be handled by the D.C. police, federal law-enforcement agencies and the National Guard - without requiring any use of regular-duty military troops.

Subject: Civil Disturbance OD Update #1

Mr. Secretary and Chief,

DHS NOC update as of 1100.

1. Civil Support Operations: The NG has 851 personnel prepared to support Civil Disturbance Operations (CDO). Mission dates are 05-24 Jan.
 - DCNG: 324 total NG
 - WING: 572 ARNG: 547 x SAD & 25 x T-32
 - Activated in anticipation of prosecutorial decision in the Jacob Blake case

- Units deployed to assigned staging areas at Kenosha, Racine, and Oak Creek armories. Mission sets include presence patrols, static security, quick reaction force, and crowd control.

2. DC Events Reported to DHS NOC 06 Jan:

- In the last 24 hrs – There were NO incidents of criminal or illegal activity directed at federal facilities or personnel.
- Approximately 3,000 gathered in Freedom Plaza into the night with minor altercations occurring near BLM plaza with MPD separating opposing groups and 6 arrests were made.
 - False report of gunshots fired near the capital
- USPP believe they can handle the POTUS event at the ellipse and National Mall
- USSS estimates the crowd in and around the Ellipse at 1000 hours in excess of 20K. There are no reported incidents at this time.
 - MPD estimation is 15k in and around the city.
- The Arlington County Police Department received and agreed to a request from the D.C. Metropolitan Police Department for mutual aid assistance for both today (Jan. 5) and tomorrow (Jan. 6).
- Threat to fly a plane into the Capitol building during inauguration deemed not credible by FBI

3. National events:

- Statement by Kenosha Mayor after release of prosecutorial decision in Jacob Blake case met with animosity
- DHS NOC Watch Officer: Las Vegas Metro Bomb Squad investigating a suspicious item deemed not an explosive device.
- Police confirm suspicious item found on the steps of the DeKalb County Courthouse, GA does not pose any threat. The courthouse has been re-opened.

Gentlemen,

Had a good call and AAR discussion with the PAO team. [REDACTED] B5 [REDACTED] B5 I recommended that they send the press release out to the Soldiers on mission so that they know what their left and right limits are should media come up and ask for interviews – due to the quick nature of this mission the team wasn't able to produce media cards for Soldiers to have in their pockets. We've also shared our PAG with the PAO team.

We are assisting the team with appropriate handling of a few threatening social media posts/direct messages and will share the CID-produced digital persona privacy guidebook. I recommended they have commanders distribute this to their Soldiers/Airmen and have a discussion on how people can protect their digital identity.

Capt. [REDACTED] B6 has reached out to the reporter to have him correct the incorrect statement about the 200 QRF personnel number in the story.

13. DC National Guard will be unarmed for Electoral College protests after George Floyd failures

Washington Examiner Online, Jan. 5 (1504) | Abraham Mahshie

In the face of severe criticism for its response to the George Floyd protests in June, the District of Columbia National Guard will be unarmed in the nation's capital to support local law enforcement during protests surrounding Congress's counting of electoral votes that is set for Wednesday.

"We saw numerous challenges, but we continue to support our fellow citizens and visitors to the district," spokesman Senior Master Sgt. Craig Clapper told the Washington Examiner on Tuesday. The Guard will be activated through Thursday.

Clapper said Mayor Muriel Bowser insisted that the 340 local Guard members who will help local law enforcement with traffic, crowd, and access control be unarmed.

Only Quick Response Force members, if specifically requested, would carry a baton and shield for personal protection.

"We've explicitly been told there is no weaponry of any kind for this mission," Clapper said. "If anything came to that, yes, they would have to facilitate transportation back to the armory."

Of the 340 activated Guard members, 115 would be on the street with traffic and crowd control at any one time, Clapper said. That leaves more than 200 that could potentially respond in a QRF capacity.

The District of Columbia National Guard was criticized this summer after it was called to assist law enforcement with clearing Lafayette Square of protesters near the White House prior to a curfew on June 1 so that President Trump could walk through the park for a photo opportunity.

Two National Guard helicopters flew low over protesters in an effort to disperse them, causing an incident that is still under Army investigation. The incident has been turned over to the Pentagon's inspector general, but the findings have not been made public.

The Guard also wore inadequate identification and borrowed gear with the city's police markings, all issues Clapper said have been resolved ahead of the current mission.

'Not a civil disturbance mission'

Should civil disturbance occur surrounding the electoral ballot count, authorities in the city would have to request authorization from Army Secretary Ryan McCarthy for a change in the National Guard mission. -

33-

"This is not a civil disturbance mission for us," Clapper said, drawing a distinction between the Guard response in June that encamped the entire 2,600-member force and summoned out-of-state Guard units, who remained nearby on the ready.

Following the June incident, then-Defense Secretary Mark Esper told the House Armed Services Committee that the 1,700 active-duty military members on standby in Virginia were not used and that 5,000 Guard members on duty did not engage protesters.

This activation may be different, with district businesses already boarding up and calling on employees to work remotely in what may be a final salvo for election protesters.

In October, McCarthy defended the use of the Guard during violent protests in which some Guard members were injured.

"The protests became very violent," McCarthy told Pentagon journalists at the time. "It was necessary to bring in the support to help local law enforcement and federal law enforcement officials due to the tremendous damage [and] police officers and Guardsmen being injured."

National Guard Association spokesman John Goheen sees few parallels between the June events and the current activation. He pointed out that previous protesters were locals, while tens of thousands of expected protesters this week are expected to be out-of-town Trump supporters who are angry at the election results.

"There certainly is some anger," he said. "Anger on the streets is not a good thing."

He added: "What you can't allow is for those expressions of anger to turn violent, either to people or property. So those are your similarities, but you are talking about different groups here."

Both officials assessed that the Metropolitan Police of the District of Columbia's intelligence was guiding decision-making at this early stage, monitoring social media chatter and messaging.

Proud Boys leader Enrique Tarrio was arrested on Monday after he entered the district in connection with setting fire to a Black Lives Matter banner taken from a historic black church. He was also charged with two felony counts of possessing high-capacity magazines found when he was taken into custody.

Still, Clapper said, Washington's Guard members, who are among the most diverse units in the country with an estimated 50% minorities, will not wear helmets or security vests.

"They literally have a vest, and it's like a vest that somebody at Walmart would wear," Clapper said. "Fingers crossed that nothing goes too crazy."

Stars and Stripes Online, Jan. 5 (2003) | Caitlin M. Kenney
The U.S. Navy released its strategy Tuesday on how the service plans to become more active in the Arctic as the region opens up to more economic and military competition from Russia and China. “In the face of increasing aggressive activity in the high north from both Russia, which is an Arctic nation, and China, which claims to be a near Arctic nation, we in the United States must maintain a favorable balance of power in this region for ourselves and for our allies,” Navy Secretary Kenneth Braithwaite told reporters ahead of the document’s release.
2. Russia’s Neighbors Rebuild Defenses
Wall Street Journal, Jan. 6 (2000), Pg. A1 | Michael M. Phillips and James Marson
With Russia’s foreign policy growing more assertive over the past decade under President Vladimir Putin, the Swedes are bulking up defenses on Gotland. Its army expects that in the opening moments of a Russian invasion, airborne soldiers from the 76th Guards, based across the Baltic Sea, would likely parachute onto Gotland. Both sides know that whoever controls the island controls naval traffic through the southern Baltic.

20. As US hits daily Covid-19 death toll record, states call in National Guard and train volunteers to help boost pace of vaccinations

CNN.com, Jan. 6 (0217) | Christina Maxouris

The US reported its highest daily Covid-19 death count ever Tuesday -- a grim milestone that comes as state leaders work urgently to combat a slow pace of vaccinations. As numbers climb, governors are now taking new measures to get the distributed vaccines into arms faster: including mobilizing National Guard members and training more volunteers to administer vaccines.

21. Iran: Seizure of South Korean tanker is not hostage-taking

Washington Post, Jan. 6 (0115), Pg. A14 | Simon Denyer, Min Joo and Kim Erin Cunningham

Iran denied on Tuesday it had taken a South Korean tanker hostage after the ship was seized by armed guards in Persian Gulf waters, even as it complained that Seoul had frozen $7 billion of its assets.

22. Iran tests drones in military exercise

Reuters, Jan. 5 (0957) | Not Attributed

Iran launched exercises featuring a wide array of domestically produced drones on Tuesday, Iranian media reported, days after the anniversary of the U.S. killing of a top Iranian general by a drone strike in Iraq.

23. Venezuela Installs Rubber-Stamp Congress

Venezuela's regime installed a rubber-stamp congress Tuesday, challenging an opposition legislature run by lawmaker Juan Guaido that says it remains the nation's sole democratic institution.

NOTABLE COMMENTARY

24. Preparing for the next cyberattack

Washington Post, Jan. 6 (0115), Pg. A22 | Editorial

The Solarwinds hack, it seems, was worse than initially feared - and initial fears were already alarming enough. The manner in which the U.S. government left itself vulnerable to the attack demands a reckoning that runs the policy gamut. But the best place to start may be the least flashy: security of the software supply chain.

25. Planning for Trump's tense final days

Washington Post, Jan. 6 (0115), Pg. A23 | David Ignatius

As President Trump's supporters gather in Washington for what could be several days of violent protests, senior government officials appear confident that the chaotic situation can be handled by the D.C. police, federal law-enforcement agencies and the National Guard - without requiring any use of regular-duty military troops.
