- On 03/03/2020, Tacoma Police Department officers contacted Manuel Ellis while he appeared to be in an excited delirium. Officers were able to handcuff and arrest Ellis after he assaulted officers. During the contact, a radio recording revealed that Ellis states: "I can't breathe". While in custody Ellis died despite attempting life-saving measures. The official cause of death was ruled as a homicide due to respiratory arrest due to hypoxia due to physical restraint with dilated methamphetamines and dilated cardiomyopathy as contributing factors. The results of the autopsy were released on 6/02/2020. Due to the RIP autopsy being recently released and the similarities between Ellis' death and George Loyd's death there is a possibility of increased civil unrest in the Tacoma and surrounding areas. It should be noted there was a peaceful vigil held for Ellis near his arrest site on 6/03/2020.
