Dewey Asks Legislative Approval For Presidential Two-Term Limit

ALBANY, (AP)—Governor Thomas E. Dewey favors a two-term limit for U. S. presidents.

The governor, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, urged the legislature last night to approve a proposed federal constitutional amendment which provides that no person shall be elected president more than twice.

Dewey's recommendation, made in a special message to the legislature, was followed by introduction of identical implementing resolutions in the Republican-controlled senate and assembly and provoked Democratic criticism.

Senate Democratic Leader Elmer F. Quinn, referring to the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, who was elected to a fourth term, said:

"It is an insult to the memory of the greatest president for the governor to make this suggestion while his excellency is seeking the nomination as president."

"Franklin D. Roosevelt saved the world," Quinn shouted. "Let him lie in peace in Hyde Park."

Senate Republican Leader Benjamin F. Felnberg replied that "Governor Dewey didn't originate the resolution. It was passed by Congress and transmitted to the governor by a Democratic secretary of state. There are Democrats of high standing who believe in the resolution, including James Farley."

The proposed amendment, which must be approved by three-fourths of the state before it can be ratified, provides not only that no person shall be elected president more than twice but that no person who for more than two years has held the office or acted as president shall be elected more than once.

Dewey noted that "the amendment does not apply to the person holding that office when it was proposed by the congress or when it becomes operative."

He said that when New York ratified the United States constitution in 1788 the state convention "strongly urged" the constitution be amended so that no person would be eligible to the office of president for a third term.

"I commend this principle to your honorable bodies," Dewey said, "and recommend appropriate action so that it may, 160 years later, become part of the constitution of the United States."
